Reference: Docket No. 26-10005, Response of BP Energy Company regarding calendar-year 2025 Gas Annual Report G-22

To the Commission:

BP Energy Company ("BPEC") respectfully submits this response concerning its calendar-year 2025 Gas Annual Report G-22. BPEC acknowledges that the confidential portion of the filing did not comply with the confidentiality-submission requirements of NAC 703.5274. On June 1, 2026, Commission Staff advised that the filing had been rejected because the confidential materials were not submitted in the required separate confidential envelope, on pink paper, with each page marked confidential.

Nature of the filing deficiency

BPEC had arranged for public and confidential versions of its annual report to be produced and submitted. The filing service provider subsequently advised that pink electronic copies had been provided to the printing vendor, but the confidential pages mailed by the vendor were printed without the required color and appeared gray rather than pink. BPEC recognizes that responsibility for compliance with the Commission's filing requirements remains with the regulated entity notwithstanding its use of service providers.

Corrective action

After notice of the deficiency, BPEC and its filing service provider acted to correct the affected G-22 submission. On June 3, 2026, replacement public and confidential packages were prepared. The confidential version was printed on pink paper and marked confidential, and the package was sent directly to Commission Staff by FedEx. Delivery was confirmed through carrier tracking on June 4, 2026.

On June 22, 2026, the filing service provider advised BPEC that Commission Staff had indicated that the corrected confidential submission was accepted. BPEC understands that acceptance for filing does not constitute a determination of substantive compliance or waive any Commission requirement.

Corrective measures

BPEC has revised the process for these submissions so that the filing service provider prints and mails the public and confidential packages directly rather than relying on the prior third-party printing workflow. The revised process also requires pre-submission verification of the applicable confidentiality requirements, including:

- use of pink paper for confidential pages;
- confidential markings on each applicable page and the sealed envelope;
- reconciliation of the confidential submission to the public or redacted version; and,
- retention of filing and delivery evidence.

Requested Commission action

The deficiency was corrected promptly, the replacement package was delivered directly to Commission Staff, and the workflow that produced the paper-color error has been revised. Staff's June 1 communication identified a confidentiality-submission deficiency and did not identify a substantive deficiency in the information reported.

For these reasons, BPEC respectfully requests that the Commission:

- allow BPEC's certificate, license, permit, or other Commission authority to remain in good standing;
- determine that no additional administrative action is necessary to secure compliance; and
- waive any administrative fine or, alternatively, reduce any resulting fine considering the prompt corrective action and the measures implemented to prevent recurrence.

BPEC remains committed to timely and procedurally compliant regulatory filings, regrets the filing oversight, and appreciates the Commission's consideration of the steps taken to promptly correct the filing and prevent a similar issue in the future.

Kind regards,
